Title: ADHD survey to explore whether or not you are experiencing ADHD symptoms.

For this experiment, I attached a general online questionnaire to help the viewer explore whether or not they are experiencing symptoms commonly associated with the neurodevelopmental disorder of Attention-deficit/hyperactivity disorder or ADHD. I informed them that this is not to be treated as a diagnosis, and that they should seek medical/mental health assistance for a proper diagnosis. The keywords I used were ADHD, questionnaire, symptoms.

I set the parameters for the survey as follows: 20-minute estimated completion time, no compensation, must be located in the United States, must have a HIT approval rate of 95%, and the number of hits approved greater than 100.
